Women in Golf Charter – Promoting Gender Equality in Golf In conjunction with International Women’s Day

Kuala Lumpur, 8th March 2023 – The Women in Golf Charter is an initiative aimed at promoting greater gender diversity and equality in the sport of golf. The charter, launched by the R&A in 2018, has been signed by over 250 organizations worldwide, including golf clubs, national federations, and manufacturers. The Malaysian Golf Association came on board as a signatory of the R&A Women in Golf Charter and successfully launched its own Charter on 7th June 2022 at the Royal Selangor Golf Club. As of printing time, 35 MGA Affiliates have come on board to become the signatory of the Chapter.

At its launch, the Malaysian Golf Association was proud to announce their support for the Women in Golf Charter as part of their commitment to promote gender equality. The MGA recognizes the importance of creating a more inclusive and diverse golf community, and they are committed to doing their part to make that vision a reality.

The MGA Women in Golf Charter (WIGC) is dedicated to increasing the participation of women in golf and promoting gender equality in the sport. We believe that every woman should have the opportunity to enjoy the benefits of golf, whether as a recreational player, a competitive athlete, or a professional in the golf industry.

As part of our efforts to meet the objectives of the Charter, we will be launching a series of programs and initiatives aimed at increasing the number of women and girls playing golf, as well as encouraging more women to work within the golf industry. These programs will include:

- Women-only golf clinics and events
- Mentorship and networking opportunities for women in the golf industry
- Increased representation of women on boards and committees

"We are excited to join the R&A Women in Golf Charter and to be part of a global movement towards greater gender diversity and equality in golf," says Dato' Merina Gan, Chairwoman of the WIGC who is also the Vice President of the MGA. "We believe that by working together, we can create a more inclusive and thriving golf community, one that provides opportunities for all women to succeed."

The Women in Golf Charter is an important step towards a more equitable and diverse future for golf. We encourage other organizations to join us in supporting this initiative and in promoting gender equality in the sport.

Besides the R&A Women in Golf Charter, another program of similar objectives is the "LPGA Women's Network." This online platform provides a space for women to connect, share their experiences, and learn from each other. The network offers a range of resources, including golf instruction, fitness tips, and career advice.

In addition to these programs, many golf courses and clubs have taken steps to increase gender equality. This includes offering women-only golf clinics and events, providing equal prize money for men and women, and ensuring that women are represented on boards and committees.

"The golf industry has made great strides in recent years towards empowering women," says Dato' Merina Gan. "But there is still work to be done. We must continue to promote diversity and inclusivity in golf and provide women with the resources they need to succeed."

MGA has also made great strides in empowering women in its organization by sponsoring a resolution to include a third Vice President who must be a lady which was passed by 2/3 of the members in the 2020 AGM. Another critical and most revolutionary decision made by the MGA to empower women in the industry was by appointing a lady, Ms Deborah Wong to head its Rules & Amateur Status Subcommittee.

The golf industry has the potential to be a powerful force for gender equality, and these programs serve as a model for other industries to follow. By embracing diversity and empowering women, the golf industry can create a more inclusive and thriving community.
